

Errors in essay writing

Unlike tests, essays do not assume a multiple-choice format (when you have multiple choices). Essay writing is not limited in time, you can rewrite it many times or order cheap essay writing and ask your friends to read your essay. Take advantage of all opportunities and try to avoid common mistakes.

Bad check.

Do not think that you can limit yourself to spell check. Reread your essays and make sure that there are no ambiguous expressions, unsuccessful spins, etc. Examples that are not worth "taking note":

"I am proud to have been able to resist the use of drugs, alcohol, and tobacco.

"To work in your firm (organization) located in a wonderful place with a lot of Gothic architecture will be an exciting challenge for me.

Tiresome preambles. Insufficient number of details.

Too often an interesting essay loses out in what is an enumeration of statements without illustrating them with examples. The essay is characterized by common cliches: the importance of hard work and perseverance, learning from mistakes, etc.

Versatility.

Essays are limited to a certain number of words, so you need to manage this volume wisely. Sometimes this means giving up ideas or details, especially if they have already been mentioned somewhere or are not directly relevant. Such things only distract the reader's (listener's) attention and obscure the main subject of the essay.

Long phrases.

The longer the sentence, the better - this is the opinion of some candidates. However, this is far from the truth. Long phrases do not yet prove that the author is right, and short sentences often have a greater effect. It is best when long phrases alternate with short phrases in an essay. Try to read the essay aloud. If you feel that you are taking a breath, break the paragraph down into smaller paragraphs.

When you finish writing an essay, do this exercise. Assign each paragraph a letter: either S (short), M (medium), or L (long). S - less than 10 words, M - less than 20 words, L - 20 or more words.

A correct essay has the following or similar letter order - M S M L M S.

The wrong essay characterizes such a sequence of letters - S S M L L L.

Do not overload the essay.

When writing an essay, discard the words from the encyclopedias. Incorrect use of such words distracts the reader's attention, diminishes the meaning of the essay.

Avoiding such common mistakes, you will be able to interest the expert commission (employer) with his experience.
